On Friday, April 28, 2006 the Indianapolis Recorder newspaper, a weekly newspaper that is geared toward the African American community, published an illegal campaign ad. The ad appears to be sponsored by the "Concerned Clergy" but the ad does not identify who paid for it. (see Attached copy of ad). The ad clearly endorses candidates by name. The ad appears to be coordinated with candidates campaigns. A candidate for school board campaign ad appears next to the illegal endorsement. The ad expressly endorses congresswoman Julia M. Carson and others for judicial posts. At the bottom of the ad, the ad endorses Ron Franklin but cuts off the position he is running for. The ad endorses candidates for other elected offices. Most are all Democrats (~~except~~<sup>except</sup> Olgin Williams and Ron Franklin). I believe that this ad was an in-kind contribution to the Carson campaign and others. I believe it was coordinated with the goals of the Marion County Democratic Party. If (the ad) does not indicate who paid for the ad, I believe Democratic State Representative Carolene Mays paid for the ad. I believe owner William G. Mays sanctioned this ad to be run. ~~I believe this ad violates the BCRA of 2002 and the DISA, per~~ ~~I believe this ad violates the FECA of 1971. I do not believe the Indianapolis Recorder qualifies for the "press exemption"~~ problems, with voting, please ask to vote by provisional ballot. May 2, 2006 is also your opportunity to vote for school board candidates. The Concerned Clergy supports and endorses Olgen Williams for IPS School Board Candidate At-Large. Olgen is the father of ten children, the Executive Director of Christamore House, and has years of experience in those issues that confront our youth daily. IPS needs Olgen Williams, our students need Olgen Williams, so remember his name as you select your school board candidates.

The May 2nd Primary Election also give the voters of the 7th Congressional District the opportunity to send our own Congresswoman Julia Carson back to the US Congress where she has done an outstanding job, of representing we the people. Julia, a true public servant who is committed, compassionate, intelligent and experienced. The Concerned Clergy encourages you to support and endorse our Julia!!
